

ANALYTICAL TABLE OF CONTENTS

1

The Use of National Accounting Frameworks for Economic Policy and Development Forecasting: A Survey of Israel's Research Experience, 1958-1961

by MICHAEL BRUNO

	Page
I Introduction	1
II General Background and Statement of the Problem	3
III The Choice of Tools for Analysis	6
IV Improvement of the Model and a Related Disaggregation of the National Accounts	11
V Bearing on National Accounting Concepts and Measurement	15

2

An Interindustry Model of Production and Consumption for Economic Planning in Norway

by PER SEVALDSON

I Introduction	23
II Government Economic Planning in Norway	23
III Advantages of a Formalized Budget Model	25
IV The Model	27
V Evaluation of the Model	31
VI Tests of the Interindustry and Elasticity of Demand Relationships	32
VII Location of Errors	40
VIII Studies of Aggregation	44
IX Summary of Findings	49

3

The Use of National Income Accounts for Long-range Planning in Japan

by K. OHKAWA

I Introduction: Appraisal of Growth Potentials	51
II The Use of National Income Accounts as Targets	54
III A Simple Presentation of the Framework Model	59
IV Concluding Remarks Suggested by Japan's Experience	68

L'Utilisation des Comptes Nationaux pour la Politique Économique et les Modèles en France

par JACQUES MAYER

	Page
I Le Développement de la Comptabilité Nationale en France	70
II Comptabilité Nationale et Préparation de la Politique Économique à Court Terme: Les Budgets Économiques	75
III Comptabilité Nationale et Étude des Mésures Partielles de Politique Économique	81
IV Comptabilité Nationale et Préparation des Plans à Moyen Terme	86
V Quelques Rémarques en Conclusion	87
Appendix: Summary in English	89

National Accounting and Economic Policy Decisions (with special reference to the Netherlands)

by C. A. VAN DEN BELD

I Introduction	91
II Short-term Forecasting	92
III The Use of National Accounts in Forecasting	92
IV Monetary Aspects	93
V The Monetary Survey	94
VI Liquidity	97
VII Conclusions	98

Income Redistribution through Taxation and Social Services: Some International Comparisons

by COLIN CLARK and G. H. PETERS

7

Redistribution of Income in the United Kingdom in 1959, 1957 and 1953*by J. L. NICHOLSON*

	Page
I Introduction	121
II Definitions and General Methods	122
III Results	137
Acknowledgments	146
Appendix	177
Postscript	185

8

Estimating the Distribution of the Tax Burden

by R. A. MUSGRAVE

I General Procedures and Results	186
II Distribution of Tax Payments in the U.S.	190
III Rationale of Allocating Tax Payments by Economic Categories	195
IV Further Issues	205

9

The Effects of Redistribution on Size Distribution of Personal Income and Household Net Income in Germany in 1955 and 1959*by G. GÖSEKE*

I The Problem	220
II The Method	220
III The Incomes of Self-employed and Private Companies	222
IV The Income from Employment	226
V Income of Pensioners	230
VI Transfer Incomes and Net Income	231
VII Income of Households	232
VIII A Balance of Redistribution	236
The Detailed Tables and Diagrams	238

10

Impact of the Income Tax on Socio-economic Groups of Families in the United States

by SELMA F. GOLDSMITH

	Page
Introduction	248
I A Cross-section View of Family Incomes	248
II Impact of the Federal Individual Income Tax	264
Appendix	277

11

Redistribution of Income in Denmark Before and After the War

by KJELD BJERKE

I Introductory Remarks	280
II The Trends in Population and National Product	281
III The Trends in Incomes, Taxes and Social Welfare Expenditure	282
IV Maximum Equalization	284
V Population and Incomes Distributed Above and Below the Limit	285
VI Taxes and Social Welfare Expenditure	289
VII Redistribution	292
Appendix	300

12

Redistribution of Income and Economic Growth in Underdeveloped Countries

by V. K. R. V. RAO

13

Redistribution of Incomes in Norway

by ODD AUKRUST

I Discussion of Theoretical Problems	334
II Practical Difficulties	335
III Results	336

National Accounting Practice in the German Federal Republic:
A Summary

	Page
I The Organization of Official National Accounting in the Federal Statistical Office, by H. Bartels	337
II The Work of the Deutsche Bundesbank in the Field of National Accounts, by H. Schlesinger	339
III Official Estimates of Future Economic Development, by G. Fürst	340
IV National Accounts as an Instrument of Economic Analysis in German Economic Research Institutes, by K. D. Arndt	342
V National Accounts as a Tool of Economic and Fiscal Policy, by K. H. Raabe	343
VI Research in the Field of National Accounts in German Universities, by J. H. Müller and R. Jochimsen	344